1. Quizzes (40 points) and Final exam (40 points total): There will be 8 quizzes (each worth 5 points) and the final exam. Quizzes and the final will cover materials in lectures, class discussions, and the textbook. A Study Guide will be provided in week 8.
2. Presentations (130 points total)
(Note: Encyclopedias and dictionaries do not count as sources.)

Presentation 1: Intro speech (5 points)

Presentation 2: Informative – Emphasis on content and structure with library sources (40 points)

Presentation 3: Persuasive – Emphasis on evidence and proof with Library Sources (40 points)

Presentation 4: Mock interview (5 points)

Presentation 5: Group Presentation with interview and library sources (Individual=40 points)

Introduction speech (5 points): This is a practice speech that will help us build an online learning community. Please make you memorable by telling us something unique about yourself, for example, your passion, dreams, failures, values, etc. Your speech should be between 2-3 minutes long.

Informative speech (40 points: 30 points for presentation and 10 for outline): In this presentation you will inform the class about an object, procedure, person, event, or idea. Your topic should interest both you and your audience. Conduct research on that topic and develop a 5-minute speech on that particular subject matter. Points will be deducted if it is not between 4:30-5:30 minutes long. You are to cite a minimum of 3 credible sources such as journal articles or books and 2 should be within the last four years. The delivery of the speech should be extemporaneous. On the day of your presentation, you will turn in your outline with a reference page following either APA or MLA style. If you are in doubt of the appropriateness of your topic, get it approved by the instructor first.

Persuasive speech (40 points: 30 points for presentation and 10 for outline): This presentation will be delivered extemporaneously and be 5-7 minutes long. Please select a controversial topic of local, state, national, or international significance. You must attempt to persuade your audience on a proposition of fact, policy, or value. Research will help you build speaker credibility and develop your points. Therefore, you are expected to use a minimum of 4 sources for this speech. On the day of your presentation, you will turn in your outline with a reference page.

Mock interview (5 points): You will be provided with a list of frequently asked questions for job interviews in Week 9. You are required to choose at least 5 questions to answer. This activity will help you improve your interviewing skills. The answer to each question should be designed as a mini-persuasion/presentation with general statements and specific evidence (effective use of logos, pathos, and ethos).

Group presentation (40 points: 30 for presentation and 10 for outline): This presentation entails groups of 3-4 students working together. Ideally, your group will decide on a topic that is related to interpersonal relationship. But if you are interested in other topics, please make sure that you get approval before you proceed with the research. Then each person will conduct library research. If your topic is interpersonal in nature, you can conduct an interview with someone who is experienced in that area. Your interview will be used as one source. Please integrate it into your main points. Each member of the group will then present one aspect of the project to the class in a 5-minute presentation and cite at least 4 credible sources. Points will be deducted if it is not between 4:30-5:30 minutes long. Hence, if you have 4 group members, your group speech length should be about 20 minutes. Along with an introduction and conclusion to the entire presentation, each speaker should provide a mini-introduction and conclusion to his or her segment. Like the introduction, transitions are important to help listeners follow the structure of a group presentation. Work as a group to plan the introduction, conclusion, and transitions of your group presentation. The key is to synthesize the material together as a group presentation! Each student will receive a grade based upon his/her individual presentation. Each student will turn in an outline of his/her part of the speech and a reference page.

Note: Point deductions will be given to students who do not fully participate in their group discussion and preparation process.

*Please get familiar with VidGrid in Blackboard system or open an account on YOUTUBE. All speeches need to be videotaped and made accessible on the assigned weekly Discussion Forum.

*All three outlines must be typed (12-point font size) and single-spaced with 1 inch margins.

- 3. Self-evaluation of presentation (10 points): In a minimum of two pages (typed, double-spaced, 1 inch margins, 12-point font size, times new roman), address at least two of the following areas about either your informative or persuasive presentation: topic and purpose, organization, supporting materials, audience adaptation, and language; and delivery (vocal and other nonverbal); and overall assessment. Please incorporate both the strengths and weaknesses in your speech while also noting the ways your public communication can be improved.

FORMAT OF WRITTEN ASSIGNMENTS: All work must be typed and double-spaced unless otherwise noted. Outlines should follow APA style, have one-inch margins, and use a standard 12-point font (Times New Roman, Calibri, or Ariel). Please proofread your work carefully for spelling or grammatical errors. You will lose points for excessive grammatical or spelling errors. Please turn in your outlines in the designated folders. DO NOT email your outlines to the instructor or attach them on Discussion Board.

- 4. Blackboard discussions and participation (50 points): Besides the assignments and exams described above, there are 50 points reserved for discussion board participation.

In order to be successful in an online class, you are expected to be a fully engaged member of our learning community by participating in class discussions and activities. Each week there will be questions or activities for you to complete. All discussions and activities should be completed by midnight 11:59 PM Central time Sunday. For each missed online discussion, 5 points will be deducted and you will also be counted as absent.

Weekly Discussion Forum will only be active and accessible for one week. Make sure you turn in your posts in a timely manner.

Your answer or comment should be at least 80-100 words long and in complete sentences following the convention of good writing (3 point); and demonstrate level-two or level-three thinking (2) – you have to show your competency in applying, analyzing, synthesizing, and evaluating. [To post on Discussion Board, follow these steps: <https://wbu.blackboard.com/>, username and password, log in, My Courses, Speech Communication, Discussion Board, Forum (Week 1, 2, 3 etc.), Create Thread, Submit]. You will earn 2.5 (acceptable), 3.5 (proficient), 4 (advanced), or 5 (superior) depending on the quality of your writing and thinking.

5. Attendance and participation (30 points)

Besides submitting your weekly Discussion Board posts punctually, you are expected to be respectful of your peers and to be responsible for constructive peer criticism in order to create and maintain a positive learning environment. Group discussions will be assigned three to four times so that you can get familiar with your fellow classmates. Inconsistent performances and inconsiderateness may cause a loss of points in this category.

6. Missed Assignments and Late Work

Makeup opportunities for assignments/speeches are only offered in the case of excused absences with legitimate extenuating circumstances. Makeup assignments must take place or be handled within 1 week of the original presentation date or due date, or you will receive 0 points for that assignment. When you miss class for an unexcused absence, no makeups are offered.
